

About Community Gardens

In Forsyth County, NC, community gardens have taken root in neighborhoods, schools, faith communities, civic and service organizations, recreation centers, and more. These are places where people come together to grow healthy food, create and preserve green space, and build relationships between neighbors.

Forsyth Community Gardening supports the growing efforts of over 170 community gardens in Forsyth County. We invite you to learn more about our work and get involved!

Our Mission

The mission of Forsyth Community Gardening is to support residents in establishing and sustaining community gardens, primarily by developing local leaders' skills in community organizing and sustainable horticulture.

By growing gardens and garden leaders, we help residents improve access to fresh produce, enhance environmental stewardship, provide outdoor educational opportunities, and bring neighbors together.

As a program of N.C. Cooperative Extension, Forsyth Community Gardening is committed to connecting residents with research-based information from our land-grant universities to support local efforts in building healthy, sustainable communities.
